

FIRE HAZARD IS AGAIN REDUCED BY MOTOR EQUIPMENT

Something which has been advocated by Town Councilors of the past (as well as citizens) for many months has at last reached the stage of fruition in the shape of a dandy motor fire engine for the town.

This splendid acquisition to the fire fighting equipment has been worked out for the past week by the town council, and it is assuredly a good looking unit, and one which must whenever called upon prove its value and serviceability.

The new unit consists of a Chevrolet chassis upon which has been built up a large double-cylinder chemical with hose and other paraphernalia necessary for fire use. There is also a large strong platform for the purpose of carrying the ladders to the scene of a fire, as well as extension ladders, pails, hook-poles, etc.

For a "road-clearer" the machine is equipped with a specially loud electric horn as well as the well known "steam" operated gong and although we have no desire to see it actually needed its first run will be watched with interest; as it is an accepted fact that the first few minutes at any fire are oft-times the decisive factor in quenching an outbreak.

BANK FIGURES 60 P.C. THRESHED PRAIRIE PROVINCES

According to the Crop report of the Bank of Montreal over 60% of the threshing in the prairie provinces has now been completed; and while deliveries to date have been lower than last year, recent favorable weather has assisted the operations and in proved the grades. Estimates of the yield of wheat have varied between 32,223,000 bushels, estimated by the Dominion bureau of statistics on 12th September, and 40,478,000 bushels estimated by the North-West Grain Dealers' association on 30th September, as against last year's final estimated returns by the Dominion bureau of 38,540,000 bushels. In Quebec farm and dairying interests have benefited by a generally favorable season's operations in Ontario the crop has been satisfactory and on the whole better than in 1926, and good weather prevailed throughout harvesting season.

Owing to excessive moisture last autumn and wet weather during the spring, seeding was ten days to two weeks later than the ten-year average. The wheat acreage was reduced in consequence and oats slightly increased. Rain falls were usually heavy, especially in those areas which are usually dry. Threshing returns reveal that frost also did a good deal of damage. Hail losses were severe in Alberta, loss so in Saskatchewan and negligible in Manitoba. Cutting became general the last week of August but threshing was held up by wet weather. Wheat threshing is about 60% completed in Saskatchewan and Alberta and practically finished in Manitoba. Grades are disappointing as a result of frost, rust and excessive moisture. Deliveries of wheat by farmers to country elevators to October 25th totalled 110,910,000 bushels, as compared with 140,800,000 bushels last year.

SOUTH AFRICA SETTLES QUESTION OF UNION FLAG

CAPETOWN — According to the final draft of the agreement between the government of the South African union and the opposition, led by General J. C. Smuts, to settle the national flag controversy, the Union Jack will be flown with the new national flag over houses of parliament in the union and from union government offices abroad as well as from South African union ships on the high seas unless and until an imperial conference decides otherwise, regarding to a marine flag for the union.

The great bulk of the public as yet hardly realize the significance of the settlement, but in a close touch with parliament pay very warm tributes to the statesmanship of Premier J. B. M. Hertzog, Gen. J. C. Smuts, leader of the opposition, and Hon. T. H. Ross, minister of justice in the Hertzog government who secured their way to an agreement through the greatest compromise.

FIRST WHEAT POOL IN THE ARGENTINE

CALCUTTA — The first Argentine wheat pool has now been formed according to word reaching the headquarters of the Alberta wheat pool today. The pool it is stated was sponsored by a number of descendants of the Danish colonists that settled in the Argentine and who this year will handle about 1,000,000 bushels of wheat.

The Argentinians have written the Alberta pool asking for suggestions as to how they should now proceed and they want to know if the Canadian pool can handle their crop for them. Their request has been turned over to the officials of the Canadian pool in Winnipeg.

POOL FARMERS GET LESS FOR WHEAT THAN OTHERS

According to a recent issue of the Financial Post, it sounded like a lot of money for western Canada when the wheat pool announced that the final distribution to farmers on account of the 1926-1927 crop would amount to $19,000,000 but there is a great deal of disappointment and chagrin among the farmers.

The distribution brings the price on No. 1 Northern to $1.42 a bushel with other grades in proportion. From this the various provincial pools have made deductions for the building of elevators for reserves etc., these deductions will amount to nearly six cents a bushel. The farmers' actual return will be somewhat over $1.36 a bushel. This compares with the average closing price on the Winnipeg grain exchange for the period covered by the pool's year of $1.46. This may be taken as the average price received by non-pool farmers. The difference of ten cents a bushel will be considered a high price to pay for the privilege of belonging to the pool.

Announcement of the final payment has been late this year and fortunately for the pool, comes at a time when the wheat market has had a marked decline. Compared with present prices the pool price, for last year is not unsatisfactory.

Of the amount, the Saskatchewan pool members receive, $12,929,207. Alberta members, $4,198,587 and Manitoba, $2,085,575.

From what can be gathered the 37 threshing machines working in the Edgerton district are making a quick clean-up of the stocks in that territory. To show what this means to a town, it need only be mentioned that over 1,000 gallons of oil of coal oil is being used from Edgerton in this work.

LAND PATENTS DOES NOT GIVE OIL RIGHTS ON H'STEAD

By a recent unanimous decision of the appellate division of the Supreme Court of Alberta, it is held that the ownership of the oil and gas rights on Alberta lands which have been reserved to the crown by orders-in-council passed by the Dominion government are still vested in the crown and did not pass to patentees of homesteads. This decision is the result of two appeals from judgments by Mr. Justice Walsh who held that these orders-in-council were within the powers of the governor-general-in-council. The appeals from Justice Walsh's decision were brought by John Creighton whose action was against United Oils and by Frank E. Starfield against the new McDougall-Segur Oil Company. The land in each case is located in Turner Valley.

J. E. Varley appeared for plaintiffs in both actions J. E. A. MacKinnon and John Creighton appeared for defendants United Oils and in the other case A. A. McGillivray K.C. and H. S. Patterson appeared for the defendants, the McDougall-Segur Oils. H. G. Nolan watched the case for the Midwest Oil Co.

FEDERAL GOV'T PREPARES CASE OF ALBERTA APPEAL

OTTAWA — The judicial committee of the privy council will be asked at its sitting next month in London for leave to appeal from the judgment of the supreme court of Canada upholding the constitutionality of the Alberta act and inferentially the Saskatchewan autonomy act in respect to education.

Eugene Lafleur, K.C., for the government has been asked to present the petition and will leave shortly for London. It sets forth that in view of the importance of the question a pronouncement by the imperial court of last resort is desirable.

The case, arising in connection with the return of Alberta's resources is unique in that the government is really appealing from a decision in its own favor for the purpose of securing a judicial determination that will be final and absolute.

VILLIAN MUST GET 'EM MAD DRESSES IN SPLENDOR

Why is the villain of a picture usually the best dressed man in it? This rather strange fact—and it applies to plays of the stage as well as of the screen, is the result of a keen insight into crowd psychology according to John Miljan noted screen villain who plays the Nemesis of Ramon Novarro in "Lovers" the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production coming to the Elite this Wednesday and Thursday.

The sartorial splendor of the villain is primarily based on the fact that the average person resents an over-dressed man. Then, too, it helps convey the nature of the character.

"The villain," says Miljan, "if often a fortune hunter and is not that he has so much ego in his cosmos that he wants to be a style leader. In the old days he wore riding breeches and carried a crop—usually amid rustic characters. Naturally his appearance was resented—which made him a more efficient villain."

"I tried something akin to this once on the screen by getting shoes made of an antique hide—the photographs suited—and the camera certainly picked them up."

"But the villain just has to stand out, no matter how he dresses—to arouse the popular ire that wins him his bread and butter."

ARE PARENTS PEOPLE ARTICLE FIVE

(Published by arrangement with Canadian Social Hygiene Council)

1. Does the present-day parent care favorably or unfavorably with the parent of past generations?
2. To what extent can parents be blamed for juvenile delinquency? And in what respect?
3. Can a parent by controlling environment and companionship, mould the character of the child as desired?
4. Do you believe in the principle of parent education? If so, what should it include?
5. At what age do you think parent education should start? Should it be before or after marriage?
6. Do you think the inclusion of health as a major topic in a parent education scheme might do much to increase the physical well-being of the country?

BY PROFESSOR P. SANDIFORD
Ontario College of Education

In many ways more favorably. There is an awakened sense of responsibility, but parents of today do not know how to meet their problems. In the past the task was easy. The child simply went to school.

2. The changing social situation is chiefly responsible for juvenile delinquency. We do not fit in to the rapidly changing environment as freely as we ought. Parents, if trained, could help the matter. If they can't help then nobody can.

3. To a great extent yes. But there are rights of the child as well as the rights of the parents. The problem is to develop the child to fit society in the face of the inalienable rights of childhood.

4. Yes strongly. Children inherit traits and capacities. Parents should know about this and how traits and capacities are unfolded by education and training. Every parent should be a child psychologist.

5. Before if possible. Seventy years ago Spencer pointed out that we train our people as if they were never to be the parents of children. The whole subject has been taboo, simply because sex was taboo.

6. Yes the child must first be a healthy animal, but health is only one of the many topics that should be dealt with. In many ways physical health is much easier to secure than mental health, yet the latter is just as important.

VERMILION SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE OPENS NOV. 9th

Owing to the unusually heavy crop in Alberta this year, the opening day of the school of Agriculture at Vermilion has been postponed from Oct. 26th to Nov. 9th. There was no possibility of the farm young people having the threshing out of the way for the original date for opening so that it has been delayed until a time when it is hoped most of the grain will be in the bin Nov. 9th.

Registration at Vermilion this year is breaking all previous records. Last year the school set a high water mark or students with 130, while registration for the present has passed the 165 mark. With the splendid harvest weather it is expected that the capacity of the school will be taxed.

In addition to the regular students, there are twenty-six British boys coming under the Headley scheme. These boys are now on the water and are expected in Vermilion about the 25th or 26th. As a rule, the British boys are well educated, and are given very special and practical work on the farm. The idea being if they can handle horses and milk cows they will be useful to the farmer on Alberta farms.

On the other hand, the Canadian boys who have had practical farm experience are given a thorough course in the science of agriculture with carpentry, engine work, blacksmithing, farm machinery, livestock judging, as well as a study of soils and crop rotations suitable to the province.

In the Household Science department, 20 girls have registered for the second year and thirty for the first year. The three main branches are cooking, sewing and nursing with a number of subjects as well as good courses in English, Mathematics, etc.

The courses are all entirely free, the only expense being for board. The girls have the accommodation of a dormitory and the boys are placed in selected homes in the town.

HALLOWEEN IS FITTINGLY OBSERVED BY UNITED CHURCH

In an effort to raise funds for the completion of the new Sunday school room at the United church, a Halloween supper and social was held on Monday last in the church building, and many were the expressions of appreciation of the splendid meal provided for the delectation of the large number who enjoyed the meal.

After all had done justice to the goods fare set forth, all present joined heartily in the simple fun of a real old-fashioned Halloween party. Many ghosts, goblins, etc., were on hand to thrill and to scare, and the older ones of the gathering took just as much fun out of the proceedings as those of tender years.

Altogether it was a truly fitting way to celebrate the occasion of All Saints' eve, and of far greater benefit to the youngsters than been usually the case—when they were around the streets mostly causing trouble and annoyance by foolish pranks.

RUBBY CANADIAN APPLES FOR ALL OVERSEAS FRIENDS

"What shall I send the folks in the Old Country?" is a query heard as the Christmas season approaches, but if the average Canadian realized how much our big juicy, red apples are appreciated and enjoyed by people overseas the problem would be immediately solved.

Canada's luscious rosy apples are relished by young and old alike. They symbolize our brilliant sunshine and warm summer days and they do look so cheerful and cheerful. Northern Spies, McIntosh Reds and Baldwins are the best and the most popular to carry your kind thoughts and good wishes across the sea and standard boxes and barrels of choice hand-picked and hand packed fruit, Government inspected are procurable at reasonable prices from growers, while the matter of shipment is as simple as the mailing of a card.

The Canadian National Express will call for your apples, transport and deliver them by quick service to any station in Great Britain, Ireland and most European countries.

The transportation charge from Montreal and Quebec up to November 15th or from Saint John and Halifax thereafter, by direct steamer to points in Great Britain, Ireland and the Channel Islands is $3.10 per standard box and $6.20 per standard barrel, including refrigeration.

For rates to Canadian ports through rates to Continental stations and other particulars consult any Canadian National Express Agent.

GREATER HOST MOTOR WAYFARERS SERVED BY CLUBS

Alberta this year has been advertised far and wide by information which has been supplied visiting tourists during the motoring season through the offices of the Alberta Motor Association, and by assistance given to citizens of the province who have toured other parts of Canada and practically all sections of the United States.

Broadening of the advantages which the motor club offers to tourists both coming and going has this year resulted in a greatly increased number of motorists asking for and receiving information to guide them in their travels. In this rapidly growing demand for services of this type is seen the materialization of the hopes of those who have worked tirelessly in recent years for the development of an organization in Alberta that would assist the automobile owner in travelling over the country and obtaining directions and facilities to expedite his tour and enhance the pleasure of a trip.

Accurate figures as to the number of motorists served this season in the United States and Canada is not certain for some time yet, but an indication of the extent of the national demand for such services is given in estimates compiled by the American Automobile Association with which the A.M.A. is closely affiliated. In the United States it is estimated that more than 2,500,000 tourists have been routed by the various clubs enlisted under the emblem of the three A's.

LOCAL DISTRIBUTOR TO CANADIAN GROWERS

Distribution of $20,000 to sugar beet growers of Southern Alberta has been made during the past week according to figures compiled by the department of agriculture. This amount represents the final bonus of 47 cents a ton on the 1926 crop delivered to the Canadian Sugar factories Limited. Raymond of $1.82 over the final price paid return to growers on the 1926 crop amounts to $7.97 a ton, an increase of $1.82 over the final price paid for the 1925 crop.

In a statement forwarded to growers, the sugar company stated "Sugar prices are stable and prices for 1927 and 1928 beets are likely to remain high and attractive to the farmer."

LAND GRANT IS ASKED FOR PEACE RIVER EXTENSION

EDMONTON — Carrying his Peace River Railway campaign one step nearer the front line, Gen. A. F. Sutton waited upon Premier Brownlee and asked for the approval to the provincial government. What he sought from that quarter was the consent of the government to a request for land grants from the Dominion authorities by means of which the construction of some 150 miles of railroad in Alberta to connect the E.D. & B.C. line with the Pacific Great Eastern, in British Columbia might be financed.

Twenty thousand acres per mile was indicated by General Sutton as the area he would require, this acreage to be selected from lands adjacent to the proposed railroad. He represented his plans for a Peace River-Pacific outlet as now in process of shaping up, and the co-operation of the Alberta government to the extent of approving the land grant is the next move he finds it necessary to make.

Premier Brownlee's answer was that the government is prepared to consider and practicable proposition for solving the northern transportation problem, but that no definite commitment could be taken or stated until such consideration had been given the matter. To that end, General Sutton is to prepare and submit a written statement of his proposed scheme embodying the land grant item.

SIR R. WINFREY SAYS OILFIELDS EXCITING INTEREST

As is pointed out so aptly by the Western Oil Examiner, an example of the splendid publicity that resulted from the trip of the British editors through Alberta last month is seen in an item by Sir Richard Winfrey in the Peterborough Advertiser, on Alberta oil development.

Sir Richard points out that the oil from casinghead gasoline producers can be used in a motor car as it comes from the well. He mentions recent important strikes of crude oil as being of even greater interest than naphtha production.

"The field is still at a very early stage of development," he writes, "but it is already the most important new source of oil supply that has been discovered in Canada for many years past; and there is little room for doubt that further drilling will considerably increase production."

"The geological connection of this part of Alberta with the oil areas of the United States in Montana just across the frontier is by now pretty generally admitted and the future of localities where drilling is in progress will be watched with keen interest by those who hope for a new source of oil supply within the empire."

The annual hazard of the St. Andrew's Presbyterian church is being held at the C.N. rooms on Saturday next, when all are invited to be on hand. A good place to obtain your Christmas presents. Tea will be served.

Gov't Will Not Consider Withdrawal Mounted Police

OTTAWA — While the Dominion government cannot for one moment at all consider the withdrawal of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police as agents of the federal authority from the province of Saskatchewan as suggested in press dispatches from Regina, some arrangement may be arrived at between provincial and federal authorities whereby R.C.M.P. and the Saskatchewan provincial police will co-operate in the enforcement of provincial statutes.

This was the statement of Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, regarding the police situation in the prairie province. Hon. Mr. Lapointe stated that the press dispatch conveyed no news to him since negotiations were under way last year between the Saskatchewan authorities and himself as a result of the feeling at Regina that there was overlapping in provincial police work.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Finch and daughter, of Viking, motored to town on Sunday.

CHAPTER I

Years Ago

"I, Enrique de Solano y Vasquez, on behalf of my sovereign lord, Philip of Spain, do hereby claim these lands and waters, as his to the glory of God and the crown of Castile."

This leader from Old Spain resplendent in gold lace and handsome satins sat astride his horse, holding his mighty sword aloft by the blade with point downward so that it gave the effect of a cross.

It was a reverential and epoch-making moment that 27th day of June 1776 when San Francisco was thus founded by the romantic Spaniards.

The officers were men of the highest rank, courageous adventurers who could surmount appalling obstacles without fear of disaster or suffering.

A glorious hill site rising from the glistening ocean below! Although leagues away from the native land the Spaniards felt at home. California was theirs by right of discovery and possession. They had braved cruel hardships to gain her shores and were proud of the conquest. The vast expanse of the Pacific had formerly been known to them as their own "Spanish Lake" and it would bring friends, commerce and prosperity to their very shores.

When the last echo of Enrique de Solano y Vasquez's words had died away in the last stillness he slowly lowered his great sword and proudly read the Spanish inscription wrought in gold upon the ornate hilt:

"Ad maiorem Dei gloriam Vasquez, Vasquez, vindicet!"

In the language of his new country it translated to:

"Vasquez
For the greater glory of God
A Vasquez avenges a Vasquez."

Quickly dismounting, Vasquez plunged his sword's long blade into the earth with a flourish that would have killed the most powerful foe.

Immediately the officers, soldiers and settlers dropped to their knees in benediction.

The setting sun added its warm blessing and then disappeared on its trip around the world. But it could not take away the glory or the importance of that day.

In those care-free days from 1776 to 1848 no one did any more work than was pleasing. The woman were exceptionally lovely and there was never any cause for slander that could smirch their good names. Then men were bold, proud, temperamental and gracefully bold.

Life was just one glorious procession of love making, gayety visiting and cordial hospitality. And the house of Vasquez was the most favored social center of all the aristocrats.

The adventurous soul of the first Vasquez had long since passed on and a dignified headstone, in the private burial plot adjoining the family chapel marked his grave. There were also six crouches in the cemetery which indicated that there had been many sad hours to mar the pleasant merry-making.

But finally all the pride and glory of the fiery conqueror had been handed down to two stalwart grandsons, who with their mother comprised the entire Vasquez line. Their valuable land were secondary only to the honor of their excellent names.

The leisure life and prosperity of the Vasquez family was suddenly uprooted on an apparently peaceful day in January 1848.

They had no indication that a terrible tragedy was hovering over them. A sumptuous luncheon of wild game wines and fruits was arranged on a magnificent silver service, and placed before the three members of the household by as many faithful servants.

The finest Madeira from Spain can not surpass this wine from our own presses, modestly boasted the elder Vasquez draining his glass.

"You are right my son," his mother agreed, "and even now the peons are industriously gathering more grapes for this year's supply."

"With your permission my Mother I will go and see how the work is progressing."

The beautiful Spanish head nodded in assent. "Remember to return in time to welcome our guests!"

The elder Vasquez bowed low before his Mother and sauntered out through the archway.

The hacienda doors were already opened wide to receive a host of friends invited in for an afternoon and evening fiesta Spanish shawls and elaborate throws had been strewn across chairs to protect the ladies' silken gowns. For a whole week the servants had been preparing rare and delicious delicacies.

But unfortunately none of these preparations or possible pleasures were destined to be enjoyed.

Disloyalty, Disaster, "Tragedy and Death were to be the Vasquez's only visitors and Fate was sending them on long before the appointed hour."

CHAPTER II

The Gold Rush

A horse man galloped madly along the winding roadway and into the patio at breakneck speed, his voice rang out in loud excited shouts above the clatter of his pony's feet.

The elder Vasquez stopped on the vineyard path and ceased stroking his great hound's friendly head.

Mother and younger son Don Hernandez left the luncheon table in alarm and rushed into the patio.

The peons threw down their old fashioned scythes and came running from the wheat fields the vineyards and gardens.

Pulling the pony to an abrupt halt that lifted him high on his hind legs the horseman waved a flask in mid air and yelled:

"Gold! Gold. There been a gold strike at Sutters Mill on the American River!" The flask that he waved in exultation was filled with a wealth of dust for all to see. "The river is running with gold—the hills are ribbed with it!"

No sooner was the arresting announcement made than he put spurs to his horse and dashed away and off to spread the news still farther.

"Gold!" gasped Don Hernandez in unexpressed eagerness, smiling happily at his brother.

But the head of the house replied sadly. "No my brother, a gold rush is to be deplored. Gold awakens greed, but it spurs no one—our labors will leave—it will mean a social upheaval."

The youth's enthusiasm waned with a smile. He had thought only of the adventure and nothing of the disastrous consequences.

But his Mother knew and sighed. "Gold and money mean so little my sons, they cannot buy dreams a good name and peace."

However these fine immaterial necessities of life meant nothing to red blooded men. Practically every able bodied male in the state, the led with the news and prospects of gold pulled up stakes and hit the trail to Sutter's Mill. That is, with the exception of the Spaniards who with their usual love of lazy indolence and ease failed to join the new progressive enterprise or sell their aristocratic fingers in gold digging.

As soon as the news was passed on by galloping horsemen the gold rush became an actuality.

Unwilling to admit the menace Senora Vasquez turned into the hacienda with her two sons. Their guests were great wined and Vasquez must be ready to attend every hospitality.

No sooner had they left the patio than a faithful peon came running in breathless and stopped before them to whisk off his soiled cap and gasp in great agitation: "In the stable yard, great Captain Stoner and his sailors—steal your horses!"

"The fiends!" snapped Vasquez angrily.

Don Hernandez agitated by an equal anger, leaped to his feet and raced headlong down the stairs. It was all to arms.

"Wait my brother," called the elder. "I am head of the house of Vasquez. You remain with our Mother and leave this matter to me."

With this reminder he disappeared in the house. Hardly a moment elapsed before he returned brandishing the great sword of Vasquez. The same splendid blade that had been glancing into San Francisco ground by their illustrious ancestor seventy-two years ago.

Don Hernandez was crestfallen and disappointed at being denied a chance to share in the excitement and avenge their name, but obedience to the head of the family had always been the head law of Spanish life. He reluctantly remained by his Mother's side.

Coming around the building with grim determined step the elder brother halted at sight of such feverish activity in the stable yard.

A gruff, burly, bowlegged man of forty was Captain Stoner, and he appeared as much in command of the situation as if he had been on bridge of his ship at sea.

"You greasy swabs!" he thundered at the terrified peons "throw some saddles on those horses' backs and tighten up the belly straps."

They covered before this verbal lash and waited upon the impatient Captain and his sailors like helpless galley slaves.

One loyal and courageous little servant grasped the bride of his Master's favorite horse when he saw that Captain Stoner was about to mount and aid away without permission.

"Spawn of the Devil!" cursed Stoner "cast off and he knocked the peon backward with a cruel blow."

The helpless heap of abused humanity rolled and fell unconscious at Vasquez's feet.

"Captain Stoner! What does this mean?" demanded the young master. His Spanish eyes flashing with righteous fury.

"It means we've worked for you long enough," Stoner eyed his youthful employer with deadly calm. "You will find your ship at bay. We've resigned and its taking our pay in horses—understand?"

The sailors mounted on saddled steeds gave mute evidence of the fact. Like a true son of a long line of proud aristocrats, Vasquez stood his ground. "Stoner you forget that I am the head of the House of Vasquez!"

His eyes took on a deadly glint. "I order you to replace my property and return to your ship at once!"

He waited with all the assurance of a small child who has asked a cow to give him a glass of milk and is surprised when his bidding is not immediately obeyed.

"You jellyfish!" hissed Stoner in contempt, "we're going to the gold fields and you can't stop us—this is a new era—the world's turned upside down and now you and your family glory don't mean a damn thing."

A quick intake of breath was followed by an amazed silence and Vasquez stood stunned by Stoner's defiance.

"All abroad for the gold fields men!" signalled the Captain, and his sailors climbed into their saddles.

Vasquez suddenly regained his senses and sprang into the archway to bar their departure with his body.

"You shall not leave the Vasquez estate on stolen horses unless you ride me down!" It was a grand gesture devoid of all pretense and show—be meant it. The sun shone blindingly on the famous Vasquez sword as he held it high in his outflung arm.

The sailors pulled in their horses to a dead stop and eyed their Captain inquiringly.

Stoner did not mount, but his mind was made up. The defiance of a romantic Spaniard was not going to alter his plans. Whipping out a pistol he fired—in cold blood—at the brave youth who was defending property and name with his very life.

A blood red spot grew on the breast of Vasquez's soft white shirt. He swayed on his feet. His left hand crept up—not to ease the pain but to stop his life's blood from oozing out until that

The continuation of this thrilling serial will appear next week. Don't miss it.

MONEY WILL BE EASIER

This has been a curious season in Alberta. Abundant rains fell when they were most wanted, but rains fell also when they retarded ripening and harvesting. The crop is exceptionally large. It is not all threshed. We must continue hope for fair weather to reap
it. The wheat not all of high quality.
There is much that is of the best and much that is of lower grades but the volume will bring a vast sum of money to our farmers. More money will be put into distribution by the large amount of labor required by the cutting, threshing, hauling, the employment provided by the crop on railroads and in elevators, than would have been put into circulation by a smaller crop of more uniformly high grade. Another asset that will add to the general prosperity this year is the livestock industry. Cattle are selling now at better prices than have prevailed for many years. Livestock men and farmers owning cattle will benefit by this improved condition which is the more welcome in that industry has suffered from severe disadvantages in recent years. The outlook on the whole is distinctly good when judged from the angle of volume of money produced by primary industries.—Herald.

FREE PUBLICITY!

The following editorial which we have taken the liberty to clip from the Picton (Ont.) Advocate seems to us so timely that we reproduce it for the purpose of giving instruction to many of our would-be "supporters" (sic). To show plainly that the newspaper is no more able to distribute "free" space than the merchant can afford to provide free groceries or boots and shoes.
It is as follows:—

"This is a parchment to and for newspaper men so the rest of you can it albeit we have no objection to your listening in. It can do you no harm;
it may do you some good.

Our text will be found in an incident which occurred last week, but we may say that there is not a day in the calendar year in which do not occur incidents which would serve equally well as the basis for our sermon.

On Wednesday of last week Mr. A.
Hector Cutten, lecturer C. F. A.—C.
F. A. standing if our guests is right for Canadian Forestry Association—put on "an educational series of motion pictures in Picton on forest fire prevention, forest conservation and reforestation." As no notice that Mr.
Cutten was to lecture had appeared in The Advocate and there was not even a dodger or poster out, Mr. Cutten's lecture was not as largely attended as it might have been. In a visit to The Advocate office before the lecture Mr.
Cutten explained his failure to advertise his lecture on the grounds, first that the association had very little money to spend and second, that they could get publicity from the newspapers free. Later in a letter to The Advocate editor, Mr. Cutten asked for "a write-up on this the second largest industry in Canada." and added: "Headquarters is asking for support in the way of a half column to a column article in all local papers, while so far we have been getting."

Now you chaps, who have been giving these write-ups, will you tell us why you have been doing so, why you have been giving of your space—the only thing you have to sell, to make a living off of. A. Hector Cutten and the second largest industry in Canada has enough money to pay Cutten, to pay for films and all the other accessories of Cutten's trip, why has it not enough money to pay for advance notices of Cutten's appearance to the end that such appearance may be more productive.

The only reason that they have no money for newspaper expenditure is that they are spending in other less effective ways the money that good sense would dictate should be spent with the newspapers. And the reason this fact is not brought forcibly to their notice is that the lack of publicity managers are getting for nothing the newspapers space they should be paying for.

"It is in the interests of the public."
this publicity seeker and that government official will declare: "It is in the interests of the public and you should publish it free." If it is in the interests of the public—and more than half of the time is it not—the public should pay for it—all the public and not that small portion of it made up of newspaper men.

Make no mistake, fellow local news paper men what your subscribers are paying you for it the local news and when you fill up your paper with propaganda of any kind you are robbing your subscribers and cheating yourselves.

There is only one place for propaganda; that is in our advertising column, where it should be paid for at advertising rates. We have too many Cuttens. Let us tie a can to a few of them.—Picton Advocate

HEALTH EDUCATION AND THE RED CROSS

How to be healthy and keep it is a problem that looms largely before every person in whose care is placed a family of children large or small.
Modern life makes so many demands upon parents that frequently in the rush of keeping up with the times they are forgetful that the greatest wealth is health. Sickness means great economic losses to any community.
To the school it means a serious loss of time for both students and staff.
Amongst the more virulent maladies prevalent and alarmingly high death rate. Mothers and new-born babies need the most complete and adequate health protection. For the maternity and infant death rate prove that too many births are unattended whether with nursing or medical care.

The Red Cross is exerting itself in promoting the improvement of health and the prevention of diseases as well as the mitigation of suffering, not only of Alberta but all over the world.

Its Health Education Bureau in Alberta publishes and distributes large quantities of health literature for this vincial office are many pamphlets for the education of the mother in the homes in matters of health for her family. A large and new shipment has been received from Ottawa of the Canadian Mother's Book and it is hoped that every young prospective mother will write in and obtain a copy free. The message of health is also sent out to distant communities by Red Cross lecturers who with slides

by the Alberta Division to improve health in the province as well as how the Red Cross cares for Alberta's sick

health literature and lantern slides

Know the new, quick easy way to clean!

Gillex dissolves the dirt or grease.
A gentle rinsing flushes it out. Try panes, and linoleum, flooring, woodwork, milk cans, greasy dishes, etc. in no time and without scouring or heavy labor.

Paint and linoleum are restored
by just wiping over. Gillex merely dissolves the dirt, from the dirt to be cleaned. It is not without harm to delicate surfaces.

Gillex not only cleans but gets more than the surface dirt as it cleans. Oil or grease harbors germs. No oily or greasy surface can be antiseptically clean. By dissolving and removing all the grease, Gillex makes your kitchen, your plates and utensils, your bathtubs, your paint and linoleum thoroughly and surgically clean. And at such a saving in time and effort.

Gillex contains no grit or harm-quantities specified in directions.

Gillex makes the hardest water

KEEP YOUR CAR CLEAN

BY ERWIN GREER

(President Greer School of Electrical Automotive Trades, Chicago, Ill.)

The last two or three years have brought a very remarkable development in American body building. The mechanism of the modern motor car has reached an approximate degree of perfection leaving the manufacturers to devote more time to increasing the attractiveness of the vehicle. The present-day American car as it leaves the factory is really a thing of beauty with the highly polished surfaces and shiny metal. Naturally this has induced the owner to take more pride in keeping up the appearance of the gasoline steed. The result is that cleaning methods and equipment have greatly advanced over those of a few years back. (The most recent type of body polish is that which is sprayed on the surface with a large sprayer. In using this polish the body must first be thoroughly cleaned with water. If the body surfaces are merely polished, the polish may be sprayed on and then wiped off with a clean cloth. After spraying the polish over the surface a piece of cheese cloth is used to wipe off the excess. There is no necessity for vigorous rubbing.)

Washing the car is not the casual job some owners seem to imagine. To begin with the car should be washed immediately after it has been dirty. If mud is allowed to remain and the varnished surface more than one day it is difficult to eradicate it. For the washing, plain water should be used neither too hot nor too cold, about 50 deg. F., being the proper temperature. A large sponge soaked in clear water and the sopped against the surface so that the water trickles down is best. Never turn a stream of water at high pressure on the body. This will grind thick particles of sand and other grit into the varnish, to the detriment of the finish. The idea is to float the mud or dirt off the surface.

Soap should never be used on the body except for removing grease or oil spots. A small piece of soft cloth well covered with castile soap suds, serves very well to remove grease from panels. The hood should never be washed while hot as this will result in discoloration. In cleaning the radiator send a stream of water from the rear instead of the front, to keep moisture out of the mechanism.

In drying the body a clean chamois should be used rubbing being done in straight lines. If spots of tar or road oil are found on the body it is best to treat them with salt, butter or kerosene. The butter softens the deposit so that it may be wiped off easily. Kerosene should be applied locally and wiped off within a minute.

WINTER REFUGE FOR WILD ELK GIVEN TO GOVERNMENT

Deed to 1,760 acres of land in the Jackson Hole Country of Wyoming recently was given to the government by the Isaac Walton League, as an additional refuge and feeding ground for wild elk that are driven out of the high portions of Yellowstone park and near by country with the approach of winter snows says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The land was purchased by a popular subscription more than $40,000 being raised from as many contributors. Between 8,000 and 10,000 elk are fed there each year. Two men are retained to grow and harvest the hay which is distributed to the animals throughout the winter until they can return to their usual feeding grounds.

Better the Man with His Eye to the Sky than the Man with His Ear to the Ground

ALL through its long, successful history, General Motors of Canada has had its eye to the horizon . . . listening not for what followed, but looking always toward the thing ahead.

And General Motors has seen many of its visions realized. . . . It has seen a great industry grow up in Canada to supply the Canadian family with a means of transportation to meet its needs and resources, to answer the desire for style, dependability, luxury.

It has seen, in the Canadian Fisher Body plants, the perpetuation of Canadian ideals of craftsmanship. It has seen, in the General Motors Research laboratories, the development of countless advances and refinements on which much of modern motoring comfort depends.

It has seen, on the General Motors Proving Grounds, the proof of principles which are now accepted factors in automobile design and construction.

It has seen the triumph of co-operative purchasing and manufacturing methods with their resultant economies to be shared with the buyers of General Motors cars.

And the eyes of General Motors are still to the horizon . . . still seeking new ways to improve General Motors cars and to place the cars within reach of ever-widening circles of Canadian buyers.

Don't Tell The Wife

Copyright 1926 Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

WILLIAM B. COURTNEY

"DON'T TELL THE WIFE" starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros. pictureization of this novel

One glance at the lean captain's face sufficed to indicate the lack of necessity for suggestions. For Captain Marty having the whole story was now a man transformed without appreciable effort into the calm driving master of the crisis.

He had already started for the bridge calling to the quartermaster on the wheel:

"Hard about!"
Ranny followed the captain to the bridge and though he was bursting with misgivings he struggled to keep cool and not to interfere with the obviously complete and confident preparations of the captain for a swift and painstaking search.

Even while the yacht was swinging in an arc to double back on her course Captain Marty was pressing the button that rang an emergency signal bell in Stinner's bedroom.

Next without an instant's delay he unlimbered the yacht's big searchlight. At Ranny's request the captain also dispatched a sailor to arouse Clay Varick, Ranny's chum.

There's no use in rousing the whole company," said Captain Marty. "We have serious enough work ahead without a lot of old women, male and female, getting under our feet."

Captain Marty kept his eyes glued to the end of the long, powerful finger of light that he poked far and wide over the black waters.

"Mighty grim business, for us if they go down," commented Captain Marty. "We'll be up for murder!"

Meanwhile the storm continued to grow and there was no sign whatever the searchlight "probed" of the cabin ways.

CHAPTER XIII

Joan had been filled with quick terror when first Abner had cut their boat adrift. She had seen the man carrying Abner to the deck, had stealthily followed and watched what they had done with him and then upon understanding his punishment, her original intention had been merely to share his humiliation as a public gesture of protest and of scornful defiance of Ranny.

She had not counted upon anything so realistic as this, however, anything quite so foolish as being cut adrift. She feared at first that Abner must have gone crazy to do such obviously hare-brained stunts—even after she had pleaded with him to desist.

But when Abner presented to her a countenance unmistakably quite sane, and a plan and a reason modelled quite after her own style of defiance she was mollified and reassured.

"Montauk Light's still in sight," explained Abner. "And I'll row for it. We will show that crowd that we're not lightly to be made puppets and fools. Throw a bit of a scare into them too, because I know perfectly well that if anything had happened to me or to us they would be criminally responsible."

He had to yell to make himself heard above the wind.

Joan listening began to feel romantic and self-confident about the matter then.

She had not suspected this streak of adventure and strength in Abner.

Indeed Abner had not suspected it himself. What he had done, he had done upon a mad impulse.

But his sudden and reckless eruption of daring now started to evaporate as swiftly as the distance between the dory and the yacht stern lengthened—and that meant at lightning speed.

In no time at all the stern lantern had flickered out in the darkness; the yacht was lost to view from the tiny tender.

Awkwardly Abner unshipped the dory's oars and set them in the tholes. He strove to turn the dory and row towards the distant beacon on the sand cliff of Montauk Point which glowed through the murk like a dying ember.

The elements conspired to make sport of Abner's puny efforts. As Joan's eyes became accustomed to the darkness, she could dimly make out the weak utility of his efforts.

"What's the matter with you?" she called sharply. "You fuss like a girl. You'll have to put a little more muscle into it if you expect to make shore."

"I'm using every bit of strength I have, but—"

Suddenly there rushed down upon Abner a great fear—a fear of the storm, of the savage sea, of the weird loneliness. The racing waves plucking at the oars, nearly tore the arms out of Abner's body.

"I'm using every bit of strength I have, but—"

"I can't seem to make any headway!" Joan was as cool as he was excited. "My word man keep your head! Are you afraid?"

Abner was too panicky to feel abashed by the hint of contempt in her voice.

Without waiting for a reply, she went on:

"Chaps like you really shouldn't embark on this sort of joyride if you know you've had no experience at this sort of scrape. It takes a man like Ranny to make a woman feel comfortable in the open. What ever possessed you to cut into Abner, dear?"

There was no reproach only indulgent wonder in her voice. She felt strangely impelled to mother this help less male.

"A bestial blue flame made his eyes gleam in the pitchy darkness like an animal's as he rose in the tossing boat and lurched toward Joan."

"Abner, you chump, sit down!" cried Joan in quick apprehension as the man tried to reach her. "You'll have a broken head, or have us both drowned if you don't sit down."

But there was no halting Abner now. The storm and the peril of the moment had been shoved into the background of his consciousness by the desire to possess—by an all-consuming primitive lust.

He was the tribal runt quaking in an usurped cave with a stolen mate under the gods of storm and the wraths of pursuers, blindly and desperately bidding for one full moment of coveted delight and physical happiness before the mountain should topple down upon him.

Joan fought to free herself. "Abner have you gone insane?"

"Yes," he mewed, "insane about you. Nothing else in all the world matters but you dearest."

"Tell that to me some other time man!"

"There will be no other time. I've wanted you so long, ached for you—and now I have you alone at last. You're mine, now—mine alone!"

"Not until I get a divorce. I've told you."

"Divorce beheaded!" He was almost gibbering. "You're mine—mine—mine!"

A rare moment in which the world stood widely still and trembled on the bruising kiss of seeking lips.

But a moment also that the storm selected to send along a particularly high wave, which the dory crestled—and an uncommonly deep after-trough into which it dropped sickeningly.

Fate the humorist as the dory crash ed brought together with a vicious rap the lips that sought each other in darkness. And bumped Abner's forehead against Joan's nose.

NEWSPAPERS AND THE COMMUNITY

The newspapers are criticized more than they are commended. They are criticized because they printed this or failed to print that; because they gave too much space to one story and too little for another. But papers continue on their way knowing that they are filling an increasingly important part in the affairs of the community. They realize that, being human, they commit mistakes, erring in judgment and in fact. They realize, too, that these mistakes while always regrettable and frequently the result of insufficient time for consideration and verifications are infrequent, compared with the vast amount of matter which is correctly presented to the reader—Ex.
